

We didn't know what we were doing...

I started working as a Suicide Prevention Specialist on November 30, 2009.

I didn't know what I was doing.

Rosanna started, I believe, on March 8, 2010.

She is smarter than me so she may have had a better idea of what she was doing than I did. She started out as the Meth Prevention Coordinator.

We were both hired under the Meth & Suicide Prevention Initiative (MSPI), an IHS grant.

Later on (in 2016), the federal government pulled us back and told us that this grant would only focus on suicide prevention. By that time, I had already transitioned into alcohol & drug prevention.

We still don't know what we're doing!

The End
